Auguste Morel Louis Auguste Morel (1817–1887) was a French painter. Early life He was born in Nantes on August 26, 1817. Career He was a pupil at the École des Beaux-Arts and the École nationale supérieure des Beaux-Arts (which was established in 1821) and his talent was recognized early in life; Jean-Baptiste Regnaut, who taught at the École des Beaux-Arts, purchased one of his paintings. He was a student at the École des Beaux-Arts from 1836 to 1838 and at the École nationale supérieure des Beaux-Arts from 1839 to 1841. His first important commission was a work for the theater which was the subject of a critique and review of the art critics of the time. He also made paintings for private clients, often preferring to paint landscapes and genre scenes, often combining his own brush strokes with those of a model. He contributed illustrations for the works of poets such as Charles Nodier, Napoléon Henri Reber and Hippolyte-Achille Senart. He was awarded the Legion of Honour.
